INTRODUCTION

Keep What Is Yours

Your opportunities carry your name. This guide helps you keep it that way.

Most of us know the pattern. A deal is nearly closed, a door is nearly open, and then it slips away. Sometimes the very thing you were reaching for lands with someone standing close to you.

Many traditions have a name for this. Whatever you call it, the response is the same: protect your plans, your energy, and your timing. Each practice here takes five minutes or less.

FOUNDATIONS

What Is Destiny Swapping?

Destiny swapping is the belief that a person's path can be taken, traded, or redirected by someone else.

"Path" here means your opportunities, relationships, gifts, and timing: the things that are meant to reach you.

Traditions describe it happening through envy, manipulation, or ritual, and through close access to your words, your plans, or your personal belongings.

FOUNDATIONS

Signs People Describe

- Repeated near-misses. The door closes at the last moment.
- Someone close to you advances in exactly the place where you are stalled.
- A heavy or foggy feeling after time with a particular person.
- Dreams of losing, trading, or giving away something valuable.

You may see this as a spiritual contest or as ordinary envy. Either way, the first step is the same: guard your doors.

PRACTICE ONE · ONE MINUTE

Seal the Morning

Before you check your phone, say your full name aloud and claim the day:

> "What is mine comes to me. What is not mine leaves me."

The first words of the day set its direction. Make them deliberate.
